

KIWI CLASS HOME LEARNING

Your child works so hard at school! When they come home they will probably be exhausted! We expect very little of them for homework. However, here are some ways you can support their learning at home:

- Read their poems together - they will get a new poem every week and will learn these poems by heart!
- Practise their alphabet or word cards they bring home - but make it fun!
- Read their school reading books that will start being sent home soon. If they don't know a word, just tell them - it should be an enjoyable experience.
- Play board games and card games together.
- Talk about their day (at bedtime children often want to talk about their day!)
- Read the school library books that come home to your child.

Whatever you do together, make it enjoyable. If it is becoming a battle, just stop!
